3.3.1.2 General Information for spotting opportunities

As the title of the section, here we have general information about the competence (Image 16).

When mo collaborat maintainir	wing internationally, social entrepreneurs need to be able to identify opportunities that could contribute in reaching their goals. These opportunities could be sources of funding, new markets tions. Hence, having the ability to spot opportunities, entrepreneurs could identify opportunities in the international markets that will enable further expansion for their activity, while at the same tin ng the sustainable focus existing in the business.
This com	petence has the following descriptors:
 Identify 	and seize opportunities to create value by exploring the social, cultural and economic landscape.
Examples communit	can be to create workplaces for people at risk of social exclusion and professional marginalization and engage in delivery of social services and work integration services for disadvantaged groups a ties.
 Identify 	reeds and challenges that need to be met.
A social e market fai	ntrepreneur needs to identify opportunities in various ways since clearly defined markets rarely exist. This requires a focus on addressing needs of those with little ability to pay and transcending t ilures and sufficient government intervention.
Establis	h new connections and bring together scattered elements of the landscape to create opportunities to create value.
Being able elements	e to see the surroundings and utilise the immediate resources at hand is an important skill for an entrepreneur, as resources are scarce and often hard to obtain. Therefore, to be able to put toget of the landscape will help the entrepreneur in the value creation, for instance unique competences in the local community.

One of the most important competences for a social entrepreneur while moving internationally will be to spot oppo often challenges that may not be found in other contexts. As such, as an entrepreneur, you need to have the ability to l	tunities. Different contexts have different needs, various groups of users and customers, and andle the contexts when spotting opportunities.
In this document, you will be introduced to four 'themes' that this competence consist of:
Identify, create and seize opportunities Focus on challenges Uncover needs Analyse the context
These themes will be explained and definitions will be introduced in the following pages. However, we will start by givin	ng an introduction to the competence in general.
About the Competence:
As an entrepreneur, understanding how you can use your knowledge, network, time, money and other resources to c few that could need you value-creating activity, or if there are many that could benefit from your product or services. funding and survive over time. Hence, you need to create a sustainable business whose activity is needed and wanted that you should not pursuit.	eate value for yourself and other is central. For instance, you need to understand if it is only If there are only few, it might be difficult to establish a business that could get the necessary Therefore, you need to understand which opportunities that are worth working on and those
One way to identify different opportunities is to look for challenges that you could solve for others, for instance challe way is to identify needs that you could solve. This could be a need for improving a service or production method, for time, and is safe for the people transporting the product. However, as you identify new ways of solving a need or a case even though you know of situations where your value-creation is needed or solve a challenge. The reason for thi beneficial in other contexts.	nges with getting a job, that could be writing application or obtain necessary permits. Another instance better packaging of products such that the transport becomes more efficient, saves hallenge, you might experience that your service is sometimes not needed. This might be the is often that different contexts have their own characteristics, and one solution might not be
Therefore, there is a variety of different factors you need to consider when spotting opportunities, and in the next page	s, we will introduce you to them through the different themes this competence consist of.
